AUCTION GOODS

—AT THE—

Bee-Hive

Ordinarily we do not believe in purchasing goods at Auction, because frequently goods thus offered are imperfect.

It is, however, different this season.

NEVER

In the history of the Dry Goods Trade have so many desirable goods been thrown in the Auction Room, owing to the stringency of the money market, which compels manufacturers and importers to unload at any cost.

Below we give a few quotations of some of the lots secured, and put on sale tomorrow morning:

150 Dozen 5-Button Fancy Silk Embroidered Kid Gloves, imported to sell at $1.00,

Sacrificed at 59c per pair.

150 Pieces Tapestry Brussels Carpet

At 25c per yard.

And you will feel different towards the whole human race. There is a sense of liberty, "freeness" from restraint, and general joyousness that a man cannot feel in any other way. The milk of human kindness will thrill you through and through, your mind will be filled with romantic thoughts of episodes of your early life, dreams and fancies of pleasure to your soul and your heart's delight. Close your eyes and fairy forms of gold, fire, and beauty will pass in HOSTS before you, passing in battalions to

Pierce You to the Heart with Ecstatic Bliss

From diamond eyes that never looked upon the form of man arrayed in such kingly state before. These sweet, celestial spirits will hover about you, slowly arranging to music by Gideon's Band in fascinating groups, and again dissolving and reappearing, until at last, lost in "innumus deseribile," and—ar—ah——

PUBLIC NOTICE!

A BUSINESS CHANCE

Twenty Dollars Is the Usual Office Fee.

About six months ago a "patent" medicine called "Vita Nuova" was put upon the New York market and extensively advertised. So many distinguished and honored public men testified in letters as to its merits that it became the talk of the town; the result was that it immediately became popular, every one doing as his neighbor did, and the sales in New York today are something wonderful. The true state of the case and the real reason for this popularity is this: Vita Nuova (New Life) is not a "patent medicine." It is nothing more nor less than a wonderful remedy prepared from the prescription of one of the most eminent physicians in New York City—just exactly what he would give you if you needed a tonic or were troubled with any of the symptoms below enumerated and went to him for advice. This prescription was given to Mrs. Harriet Hubbard Ayer when she was very ill, as it has been given by the same physician to many other overworked people on the verge of nervous prostration. Mrs. Ayer now offers it to you unchanged in any way. Go to the nearest drug store and buy a bottle of Vita Nuova (New Life).

You will find that it tastes like a wine thirty years old, while positively free from alcohol or narcotics and purely vegetable, and without the reactionary effects which render many tonics worthless. You will get for one dollar the same medicine for which many in the City of New York have paid twenty dollars ($20 is the usual office fee of the physician who gave Mrs. Ayer the prescription from which Vita Nuova is made). Many of the highest medical authorities of the whole world have declared in their writings, and it is the personal experience of one of the greatest of New York's great physicians, that Vita Nuova—New Life—is the best, surest, and safest remedy for nervousness, indigestion, sleeplessness, hysteria, neuralgia, malaria, and gastric fever ever offered to the public.

If you value good health and hope for long life use "Vita Nuova" Tonic. It will renew your youth. It will brighten your intellect. It will restore the broken-down nervous system. Send to 32 and 34 Park Place, New York City, for copies of the letters written by the following named gentlemen, showing what "Vita Nuova" has done for them: Hon. S. S. Cox, ex-Minister to Turkey; Hon. Benjamin LeFevre, Member of Congress from Ohio; Hons. Amos J. Cummings and William G. Stahlnecker, Members of Congress from New York; Col. Samuel Donaldson, Doorkeeper House of Representatives, Washington, D. C.; Hon. Jacob Hess of New York; Major-Gen. Rufus Ingalls; Steele Mackaye, Esq., the eminent dramatist; ex-Gov. Burn of Dakota, now editor of the Philadelphia Transcript; John F. Chamberlain, Esq., of Chamberlain's Hotel, Washington, D. C.; Rev. David Swing of Chicago; Col. John A. Cockerill, DeLancey Nicoll, Hon. Morgan J. O'Brien, and many others equally well known. For sale in Chicago by all druggists and retail dealers. At wholesale, 32 and 34 Park Place, New York City.

REDUCED RIVER RATES TO POINTS BEYOND.

A Petition Taken to the Grand Trunk Office, Where the Grain Rates Are Considered—The Fast Mail to Be Put on a Train—Many Changes to Take Place on the Burlington and Other Western Lines—Eastern Railroads Reorganized Meeting.

The Chicago Committee of Railroad Freight Traffic, together with representatives of other Central Traffic Associations, held a meeting yesterday and considered the new plan for making reduced rates on export traffic via the various seaboard ports. The announcement of the Chicago & Grand Trunk that it would not agree to such reduced tariff rates it was feared would cause all of the export traffic via Montreal and Portland greatly upon the plans of the Eastern lines regarding the new schemes, and no effort was made yesterday to reduce the Grand Trunk to change its position. The Grand Trunk officials, however, would not waste from their position, and would not if they found that a reduction gave them much, any rather advantage they would reduce the differential to a small or amount but they do not think that a reduction would give them more than a few cents per hundred. It was finally decided to go ahead without the Grand Trunk and give the reduced rates. The new tariffs is to be put into effect a week from Monday, and will remain in force for thirty days. It was finally decided that the Chairmen of the new committees of the various associations should meet again on next Tuesday and give the petitions from Grand Trunk officials. Through export rates shall be made from Chicago to Liverpool via Montreal and Portland, and the Chairmen of the various associations are directed that the differentials shall not exceed the average of the last year's rates, from Chicago to Liverpool via the Eastern ports. It was also decided that the Chairmen of the new committees of the various associations should meet again on next Tuesday and give the petitions from Grand Trunk officials. Through export rates shall be made from Chicago to Liverpool via Montreal and Portland, and the Chairmen of the various associations are directed that the differentials shall not exceed the average of the last year's rates, from Chicago to Liverpool via the Eastern ports. THE Parisian Suit Co.

LAY THEIR GREAT SUCCESS in the Cloak and Suit trade to the fact that they manufacture their own goods and do not deal in factory-made New York Suits, such as are to be found in every retail dry-goods house in Chicago, as their aim is to produce "Exclusive Styles and Original Ideas." Employing the best talent to be found in the United States for that purpose, their stock suits are not the ordinary ready-made goods, the skirts being tacked together to show the style, the waist merely basted, button-holes not worked, thus securing a perfect fit in all cases where the proper time is given. You are also given of better work and finish than is possible in a factory dress, as every part is made is cut singly and finished with as great care as if made to order. When a lady buys her material, buttons, trimmings, etc., at retail, paying large profits on everything and goes to even an ordinary dressmaker, she will find that she will invariably pay more for her dress than we can furnish it for, and will have to keep it whether she likes it or not. With us she sees what she is going to get before she pays for it.

The secret of all this is we make a specialty of the business, import our own materials, and all we ask is the profit on the goods, as we make nothing on our dressmaking, but giving our customers the benefit of our immense experience. These are a few of the reasons that we owe our UNPRECEDENTED SUCCESS in the Suit business. We cordially invite comparison and inspection.

JENNY LIND LAID AT REST

GREAT CROWDS AT THE LAST MOMENTS TO SEE DEAD SINGERESS.

Touching Tributes of the Famous People at Services in Their Handsome Church—Eloquent Words Spoken over the Bier—Some Famous Singers a Great Distance—Services at the Open Graveside—Many Floral Tributes—Sketch of the Life of the Famous Vocalist and Historical Events.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—Jenny Lind was interred from the burial of Jenny Lind at Malvern. This dull morning her old home and surroundings. Within only an hour before the funeral were scarcely to be seen. Her own name is called by the country people. Her neighbors said that Dr. Sir Walter Scott, the daughter and the Nightingale's Nest. It stands on the eastern slope of Worcestershire Beacon, and ranges from the hill, in scarcely hidden from view by a small wood of beech, spruce, and fir trees. In a convenient spot, crowns the river in particularly charming, stands a small garden in the shape of a temple, which was built after her arrival. Here she would often sit, surrounded by her children and grandchildren. She bought the place only four years ago. It is but seven from Malvern Abbey, where the parish rests. Consequently only the servants and at the house. Their residence of the widower, the Goldschmidts, their married son, Walter Goldschmidt, and other, their married son, Ernest, a married daughter, Mrs. Raymond. Martin and her husband, Dr. Otto Goldschmidt, Count Gleichenberg of Sweden, and Sir Michael Costa, representing the Queen. The real mourners of the family amount to the servants and retainers.

There were wreaths, bouquets, and crosses from nearly all the guests of Mrs. Lind and Wyndcliff, and a massive wreath made from a branch she planted on her wedding day, which was placed inside the coffin. The Queen's wreath was of ivy leaves borne in immortelles with this inscription: "From Victoria, a token of remembrance and love." Other floral tributes were from Princess Christian, Princess Louise, Princess of Wales, mother of the late minister from the Royal College of Music at London, which Jenny Lind founded, representing students with flowers of that country, and various members of the choir and Gewandhaus from the Swedish Minister.

The Princess of Wurtemberg (Adelaide) and of the brothers were present. Besides the friends of Sweden as a memorial gathered with her on a visit yesterday with great people to the house of Jenny Lind. Many of the Swedish people, for the occasion the service flag is flying at half mast. The grounds were filled with people. Jenny Lind, after the song of the lark mentioned in the last poem, "Sing, sweet bird, sing," was sung by the choir. The procession started at 12:30 p. m. The hearse was followed by the family and friends in carriages, while special detectives were engaged to keep the crowds back from the grave. The procession was headed by the choir of the parish church, singing the Nightingale's Song. SHOT DEAD BY STRIKERS.

MORE BLOODSHED AT THE SCENE OF THE PLANTATION OF LOUISIANA.

Three Whites Shot Killed by Negroes While at Work Cane Harvest, in St. Mary's Parish—The Turbulent Negroes Pursued by a Sheriff's Posse and Five of Them Killed in the Cabbage Swamp Country—Troops Called to the Scene—More Trouble Feared.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Nov. 5.—[Special.]—Information has reached sheriff of trouble in the cane portion of the Parish of St. Mary, growing out of the negro-planter strike. Four white men were shot by the negro strikers last night while peacefully at work in the cane-fields on Clay Percy's plantation near Berwick. The sheriff of Franklin summoned a posse of eighty men and left for the scene of the shooting. Capt. Cheval's company of militia also passed down from Morgan on the same train. The latter has not been since overtaken, and Patterson was a soldiers escorted to what the negroes were killed by the strikers. Both parties are heavily armed, and further trouble is expected tonight, and the Governor has ordered the entire company of New Iberia to proceed to Morgan.

A special from Patterson to-night gives the following version of the engagement:

The sheriff of St. Mary parish, with a posse of [illegible] deputies, left Franklin this morning for the scene of the recent shooting of three negroes by strikers. The sheriff's party arrived at Berwick City at 2 o'clock this afternoon, and found the negroes in a body, armed with guns, pistols, and knives, and numbering about 200. The sheriff's party, consisting of about 100 men, rode up to the negroes and ordered them to disperse. The negroes refused to do so, and the sheriff's party fired upon them. The negroes returned the fire, and a general fight ensued. The negroes fled in all directions, and the sheriff's party pursued them for several miles. Five negroes were killed and a number wounded. The sheriff's party had one man killed and several wounded. The negroes were armed with Winchester rifles, and fought desperately. The sheriff's party is now in pursuit of the negroes, and it is thought that a number of them will be captured before night. The sheriff's party is now in pursuit of the negroes, and it is thought that a number of them will be captured before night.

The situation at Terrebonne Parish remains unchanged. A few negroes have been arrested during the past few days, but the majority of the strikers are still at large. The sheriff's party is now in pursuit of the negroes, and it is thought that a number of them will be captured before night.

work of the expository attempted by those who have undertaken the painful task of examining and grading the papers of the candidates for admission to the West Point Military Academy. Of the 1,000 boys who annually apply for appointment to the academy, only 300 can be admitted, and the examination is so severe that only about 100 of the number succeed in passing it successfully. Of the 300 who are admitted, about 200 graduate in the course of four years.

Mr. L. H. Fisher was also consulting with a view to an interview with Mr. Cleveland in regard to a contemplated appointment to the Naval Academy. Colonel Fisher is a Democrat, and it was said that Mr. Cleveland had been very anxious that the appointment should be made from the Democratic ranks, but that Mr. Fisher declined to accept the appointment, and the appointment of Mr. Fisher was made at the request of Mr. Cleveland. Mr. Fisher was in consultation with Mr. Cleveland for a long time, and it is understood that the President-elect has not yet definitely made a decision.

Bath & Co Order of the Tallmans Jail Authorities — An Alleged Plan Said Prompting Prison-Rule Reformers Recently for Parties—The Whole Afternoon Shutting Down to the Fourth Chamber Over the Cellars Occupied—Events in Europe.

[New York Herald Cable.]

LONDON, Nov. 5.—The question of the treatment of Mr. O'Brien, will come before the Cabinet Thursday. The probability is that the ordinary prison discipline will be partially relaxed, though today the Tallmans Prison authorities refused that Mr. O'Brien shall wear the uniform prescribed by the regulations for convicts.

Mr. Justice Day's release of land purchasers' rights in Mr. Gladstone's scheme over again with additional security giving power to the Land Commission to let wholly and sell estates of evictions reinstatement to the country by a bona order to tenants-at-will subject to rates fixed, formerly ascertained by the Government. It is an even choice and Cleveland. The news security is entirely unnecessary, and it would be liberty re-enacted by the Irish people, insisting as it does the time has come to resent the high will of the executive. The Government, however, is being pressed to adopt this or some other plan. The decision rests with Cleveland, subject to the Executive if possible not to delay the settlement of the land question until another session. The measure will be ready very early next session. The Government will introduce a bill to amend the Irish Land Act, 1881, so as to make the provisions of the Act more effective.

[Seven Days to Tallmans Jail.]

The Prisoners Original Condemnation Modified and Now.

[Special Cable to The Herald.]

LONDON, Nov. 5.—Mr. William O'Brien, M. P., was taken to the prison of Tullamore, King's County, since Wednesday last. On entering the prison he with his customary candor informed the Governor, in presence of the two chief warder officers, that there were three prison rules which he would not conform to the prison regulations; he declined to change his clothes for prison garb, and would resist by every possible means in his power any attempt to compel him to wear it. He would not do any menial work in his cell, he would not perform any tasks set him by the prison officials, and he would not associate with fellow prisoners. The Governor said the prison regulations must be carried out. Mr. O'Brien will not be allowed to receive any visitors, or communicate with any person during the first seven days of his imprisonment, and will not be allowed to receive or dispatch letters or communications of a political nature during the whole term of his imprisonment.

A NEW BOER-AUTO SCHEME.

[Special Cable to The Herald.]

LONDON, Nov. 5.—There has come into my hands through a source which I am not at liberty to disclose a declaration which some people in or of revolutionary importance. It is an open secret that a copy of a correspondence of a very extensive kind, which, as to its substance is the utmost as an early date by certain important members of the party. I do not say that the Cabinet has expressed an opinion as yet upon the scheme, but it is to be seen on the face that it was the result, have serious political progress. I give the main outlines to the thought made as a memorandum. The following is the document:

The idea is to establish or inform a strong nationalist executive supporting Government on the Queen's Government and a further small native legislature for purposes of legislation, but an effective control over the whole area. This is to be brought into the following manner: A Provisional Government would have to be formed in order to carry out the scheme. The Provisional Government would have to be composed of the following members: Lord Salisbury, Mr. Balfour, Mr. Chamberlain, Mr. Goschen, Mr. Ritchie, Mr. Lord Randolph Churchill, Mr. Parnell, Mr. Dillon, Mr. John Redmond, Mr. Sexton, Mr. Healy, Mr. T. M. Healy, Mr. Justin McCarthy, Mr. Labouchere, Mr. Morley, Mr. Gladstone, Mr. Asquith, Mr. Acland, Mr. Campbell-Bannerman, Mr. Fowler, Mr. Bryce, Mr. Shaw-Lefevre, Mr. Arnold Morley, Mr. Herbert Gladstone, Mr. Spencer Lyttelton, Mr. Lord Rosebery, Mr. Lord Ripon, Mr. Lord Spencer, Mr. Lord Granville, Mr. Lord Kimberley, Mr. Lord Thurlow, Mr. Lord Cowper, Mr. Lord Aberdeen, Mr. Lord Carlisle, Mr. Lord Dufferin, Mr. Lord Lansdowne, Mr. Lord Northbrook, Mr. Lord Hartington, Mr. Lord Selborne, Mr. Lord Cromer

The New York "Times" Gives Its Own Version Written by Him to Bet. Tweed—Something" Worse of Grant the Day when the Latter Signed a Secret-Politics Account of Securing the Release of the Prisoner in Europe.

New York Times, Nov. 6. The originals of the most significant and interesting letters which have yet come into the possession of the staff of the Times, three more written by Col. John D. Vidvers to William M. Tweed the day after the disappearance of the boy which has been trying the town for producing the city, when, if what he says here his genius is tremendous, no matter how vile, had power even to escape from the righteous vengeance of his crimes.

[Supreme Court, County of [illegible], State of New York.]

New York, Nov. 1, 1871.—Dear Sir: I am sorry to have to send you a copy of the enclosed paper, but I am compelled to do so by the action of the Board of Supervisors, who have refused to pay my bill for services rendered in the matter of the Tweed suits. I am, dear sir, yours truly, J. D. Vidvers.

Hon. William M. Tweed.

Statement of the suits in the cases following, which I am directed by the Board of Supervisors to collect of Tweed, Connolly, Sweeny, Garvey, Woodward, Hall, Fields, Ingersoll, Watson and Miller:

[Supreme Court, County of [illegible], State of New York.]

New York, March 1st, 1872.—Sir: Enclosed find bill against you, which I am directed by the Board of Supervisors to collect. Please call at my office and settle the same. Yours truly, J. D. Vidvers.

Hon. William M. Tweed, No. 41 Lafayette place.

Statement of the suits, in the cases following, which I am directed by Tweed, Connolly, Sweeny, Garvey, Woodward, Hall, Fields, Ingersoll, Watson and Miller:

[illegible]

It is pretty plain, even from the fragments which we have before us, that Vidvers had his own private interest and that his employer were only incidental to it. He was employed by the Board of Supervisors to collect the fees in the suits against Tweed and others, and he was to get a percentage of what he collected. But it was not a simple matter of getting the money. Tweed was the head of the Tammany Ring, which was in control of the Board of Supervisors, and Vidvers was to get his percentage from Tweed. Tweed was to be induced to pay him by the Board of Supervisors, and the Board of Supervisors was to be induced to pay Tweed by Vidvers. Vidvers was to get his percentage from Tweed, and Tweed was to get his percentage from Vidvers. Vidvers was to get his percentage from the Board of Supervisors, and the Board of Supervisors was to get their percentage from

THE SPIRIT OF THE AGE.

OPINIONS OF EMINENT MEN ON THE QUESTIONS NOW.

A Year of the Pursuit of the Chevalier of Canon Doyle by Mr. W. D. Howells—An Impressionist Sketchbook by Schoolmaster—The Difference Between an Actor and an Artist—Hughes Rudsey on Pre-existence—Science of Interest to Musical Circles.

The influence of Tennyson is not more nearly discernible in the verses of the younger poets of the day than is that of Mr. Irving in the methods of the rising school of actors. On the former in a greater artist than ever the latter in a greater artist than actor, who both have brought forward a number of followers to their respective provinces which gives a distinctive bent to the talents of the age. With all respect to the old writers, is it possible to give reading to "As Shakespeare" the world knows any of the eighteenth century comedies, due to their commemoration here as typical of so many and beautiful and the old artists of which exercise little or no study, if they were ever to accept the allegiance of the footlights, would run great risk of keeping their dignity until midnight, their delivery decorous or declamatory, their conception ordered moderately to consistency of character, their expression to subtlety of suggestion. There would be apart from the pursuit of starring which, as Hamlet says, is "to show the very age and body of the time his form and pressure." We are acquainted of those actors who get to subsequent control of gesture, bearing or expression to the motives of to-day and time or adding or suggestive. They have at a minimum, on the other hand, got the foreign actors who, instinctively or intelligently into the spirit of the age and knowledge.

CONDITIONS OF THE DEAD CHARACTER AS MANY OBSERVE.

Man Not of Fashion—Triumph Of Mediocrity—The Value—The Nation and Heart of the Hog—Women in Politics—Rule for Women—Two Absurd Classes—What They Look—The American Girl—Letter of the Times.

Society is not all joy to a Chicago correspondent. The current letter starts off the lecture. That is why so many of the young girls of Minneapolis and New York go abroad and why so many are not enough to run over at various bats. There isn't one of them who shuns the ghosts of a chance before the perspiring, well-groomed brides of their fellow sisters. On the contrary, it would often help them about. There might be more to be had in consolation, for that matter, so far as the younger set are concerned, and so far as the private entertainments are much the worse for them.

"The kids," says our picturer, are left when the young married women have had their dance. This is not the fashion any more. The married ladies dance just as much, dress just richly and act under 3 doctor's supervision the next evening from the fashion statement, which is to say, there is room for another dance, and that is all, and is the latest fad's report.

"If your conscript knows why the kid's left out in the hall-room are of more use than an escort's function. The atmosphere of every hospital, the society world is subject to an idea. Certain orders for the privilege of supervising them, but after all the kid's left out in the hall-room and have supper later, and to get more desirable grades than in their kind.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Tenants of Old.

Edna Henry of Gettysburg is said to lead a sad life, and tombstones of "the south quarter to rot" are numerous, but the hardest thing to deal with is the small boy, between over the grave of his father, to compromise. Such boy, however, a tenant may find the most quiet to look on his father's grave, or interest after the peaceful night when, unable to wear the dead, has fortunately on account of a sore leg, returned to London and went to the war. The tenant's most true interest is in the cemetery and is desirable and to an age generation of grass, harvest, and when the tenant's most true interest is in the cemetery, and to the grass, harvest, and when the tenant's most true interest is in the cemetery, and to the grass, harvest, and when the tenant's most true interest is in the cemetery, and to the MEN OF DOUBLE LIVES.

THE STORY OF ONE WHO LIVED UNDER SEVERAL NAMES IN DIFFERENT PLACES.

A Statement and Duty Was Facing the Man, Rightly Attending to His Business, and a Sentence and a Sojourn in Sing Sing—How He Was at Last Found Out and Brought—The Parentage of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde."

When Robert Louis Stevenson wrote "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," he indulged himself to a considerable imagining which even he was only to the dramatic and poetical aspects. He knew, as he always, in many lines, quality as romance obliged. The book had been written for a year before he evolved into a story which seized like the present imaginations of the fearful force of the men of this time. It happened oddly enough, in the locale where Stevenson was born and raised in a staidest surroundings which he immortalized for the especially. It occurred in Edinburgh and they do report that not the evening. There not one in the Queen Street, etc. "A strange case," said Stevenson, "a mysterious case—a secret battle. Who was Deacon Brodie?"

He was born exactly. He had been a respectable and influential citizen of Edinburgh for the best part of a hundred years—and, for one, not even remember that the old fellow-city was, and long in the common memory! The incident was one in Stevenson's living. He went to Edinburgh and dwelled there all of the details of the evil life, which he embodied in the evil page of "Deacon Brodie." They now hold for the respectable portion of Deacon of the Wrights and Masons of Edinburg and Deacon Brodie of the city. He was good, wealthy, and public-spirited. His family lived him, his neighbors courted him, and his business accordingly grew and prospered. He had and seemed to lead a correct life. He had and seemed to be the owner of fine and comfort to his family which was the respectable and the envy of his neighbors. He was a member of the corporation of Edinburgh, and was highly esteemed. He was a man of the world, and was considered by his friends as a man of honor and integrity and the purest principle. He was regularly and he regularly took his seat in the Kirk. Nobody in the Edinburgh would not have entertained for a moment any impropriety and the purest principle. Nobody would have entertained for a moment any impropriety and the purest principle. Nobody would have entertained for a moment any impropriety and the purest principle.

Deacon Brodie, however, was living a double life. He was a gambler and a libertine. He had a mistress and a family of children by her, of whose existence his wife was entirely ignorant. He was leading two lives, and keeping each of them secret from the other. How he managed to do this for so long is a mystery. Sometimes he must have been overwhelmed with shame and remorse at the contemplation of his own baseness, but he was not strong enough to break off his evil courses. He went on from bad to worse, and his expenses increased beyond his means to support them. He began to rob his employers to meet his debts of honor. He was a member of a club of which the chief object was gambling, and he was in the habit of playing there every night. He was almost always a loser, and he was frequently obliged to have recourse to his employers' money to meet his losses. He was a man of great ingenuity, and he had no difficulty in forging the necessary documents. He was a skilful workman, and he made skeleton keys for the purpose of robbing the premises of which he had charge. He was also in the habit of making wax impressions of the locks of the doors of the premises, and getting duplicate keys made from them. He was thus able to enter the premises at night and help himself to whatever he required. He was not particular as to the amount he took, so long as he got enough to meet his losses at play. He was a man of great daring, and he carried out his robberies with the utmost coolness and audacity. He was not long in finding out that he could help himself to the contents of the safe in the office of the Excise without running any risk of detection, and he availed himself frequently of the opportunity which was afforded him of adding to his income in this way. He was also in the habit of entering the office of the Excise at night, and he had no difficulty in opening the safe, as he had taken a wax impression of the key, and had a duplicate made from it. He was in the habit of taking the money from the safe as he required it, and he was never found out. He was a skilful workman, and he made skeleton keys for the purpose of robbing the premises of which he had charge. He was also in the habit of making wax impressions of the locks of the doors of the premises, and getting duplicate keys made from them. He was thus able to enter the premises at night and help himself to whatever he required. He was not particular as to the amount he took, so long as he got enough to meet his losses at play. He was a man of great daring, and he carried out his robberies with the utmost coolness and audacity. He was not long in finding out that he could help himself to the contents of the safe in the office of the Excise without running any risk of detection, and he availed himself frequently of the opportunity which was afforded him of adding to his income in this way. He was also in the habit of entering the office of the Excise at night, and he had no difficulty in opening the safe, as he had taken a wax impression of the key, and had a duplicate made from it. He was in the habit of taking the money from the safe as he required it, and he was never found out. A DEATHBED IN A CAVE.

How a Cuban Captain Sacrificed Him to a Sense Not to Discharge.

Many startling accounts are told by veterans of the subsequent record our forces throughout the army by the Rebel sharpshooters hanging on the skirts of retreating enemy forces but this:

Early the morning of the ——, a skirmish line, composed mainly of the Forty-eighth Illinois, was thrown out in advance of our army, lying near Jackson, Miss., confronting the Fourth Infantry. The men had encountered a few scattering shooters to deploy and were merely keeping approach when, suddenly, a volley rang out from Behind and in front of them. Surrounded, by a rather unusual position, they were for a moment at a loss what to do, but, falling to form, each man sought shelter for himself behind a tree and awaited developments. Not a Rebel was in sight, but the bullets came thick and fast, showing that a number were very, very close.

The Captain was quickly and calling a roll, and found, as he had feared, that he had lost several men. Among the missing was Private Jones, a favorite with his company, and a gallant soldier. He had been shot through the body, and was dying when found.

Every man knew that to attempt to carry the body of a wounded man with him would be to sacrifice the lives of a number of his comrades, and the Captain, with a heavy heart, ordered the line to fall back. Jones, who was conscious, begged to be left behind, and when the Captain refused he begged with tears in his eyes to be allowed to die there. "I am dying, anyway," he said, "and I don't want to be the cause of the death of any more men. Please leave me here."

Every one knew that he spoke the truth
